DynCorp International Wins New Readiness Support Task Order at Fort Bliss, Texas

FALLS CHURCH, Va., Apr 07, 2010 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- The U.S. Army has awarded DynCorp International (NYSE:DCP) a new task order under the Field and Installation Readiness Support (FIRST) contract to manage the Field Logistics Readiness Center (FLRC) at Fort Bliss, Texas. The task order has a potential value of $93 million over 5 years if all options are exercised.

At the Fort Bliss FLRC and the surrounding area, DynCorp International will provide augmentation support to the Army for equipment maintenance, depot repair, and installation of Modification Work Orders for Automotive Systems, Power Generation Systems, Weapons, Communications Systems, and receipt, storage, and issue of parts, packing and shipping.

"We are honored to be supporting the Army as part of the FLRC Team at Fort Bliss providing logistics support to the newly assigned 1st Armored Division, Stryker Brigades, and other units and activities under the FIRST contract," said Bill Ballhaus, DynCorp International President and CEO. "DynCorp International has a sixty year history providing maintenance, logistics and support services for the United States military. We look forward to supporting the Army at Fort Bliss during this period of robust growth and RESET activity as formations return from Europe and overseas deployments."
