

June 21, 2017

Steelcase Recognized as One of the Most Civic-Minded Companies in the U.S. for a Second Year

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 21, 2017 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Steelcase was recognized today as one of the most community-minded companies in the nation as a part of the Civic 50, an initiative of Points of Light. The company's expansive involvement in community programs — including a mix of volunteered time, product/service donations and financial gifts — led to the recognition, which Steelcase also earned in 2016.

"Steelcase believes we have an important responsibility to play an active role in our communities," said Deb Bailey, director of global corporate relations at Steelcase. "This second recognition shows our and our employees' commitment to donating time and resources, skills and leadership to support organizations."

Steelcase focuses support on public education, diversity and inclusion, the arts and the environment. In fiscal year 2017, Steelcase employees reported over 46,000 hours of volunteer activity in 56 global locations. A total of 275 organizations received support from the company or individual employees.

Highlights from Steelcase's community contributions in the last year include:

- | Steelcase Small Grants, a global program launched in March 2017, extends cash grants up to $2,500 to a community partner an employee has an established relationship with.
- | In-kind product donations to cultural institutions in West Michigan, including the Grand Rapids Ballet, Grandville Arts Center and the Hispanic Center of West Michigan.
- | Employee-driven community groups and projects in Athens, Alabama; Cluj, Romania; Monterrey and Tijuana, Mexico; Pune, India and many other locations.

This year's Civic 50 applicants were evaluated and accrued points based on several criteria, including the quantity and impact of financial and human resources applied to civic improvement; whether internal and external resources are activated to maximize community impact; how a company's community engagement activities support its business interests; how broadly community engagement is supported and institutionalized within a company's policies, systems and incentives; and how a company measures the social and business value of its community engagement programs.

"Since 2012, we have seen a notable shift in the results from the survey in a direction that speaks to the commitment of American companies to connect values of community service and civic engagement to the culture and operating practices of their business," said Jennifer Lawson, Executive Director of the Corporate Institute at Points of Light.

To learn more about the Civic 50, to see a full list of the winners and to access the full report, The 2017 Civic 50, which presents the highlights, trends, benchmarking data and best practices from the 2017 Civic 50, please visit www.Civic50.org.

About Steelcase Inc.

For over 105 years, Steelcase Inc. has helped create great experiences for the world's leading organizations, across industries. We demonstrate this through our family of brands — including Steelcase®, Coalesse®, Designtex®, PolyVision® and Turnstone®. Together, they offer a comprehensive portfolio of architecture, furniture and technology products and services designed to unlock human promise and support social, economic and environmental sustainability. We are globally accessible through a network of channels, including over 800 dealer locations. Steelcase is a global, industry-leading and publicly traded company with fiscal 2017 revenue of $3.0 billion.

Contact:

Audra Hartges

989-323-0488

ahartges@steelcase.com