

DRC Wins $20 Million Enterprise Architecture PMO Support Services Contract

Award Continues Company's History of High Performance at DHS

ANDOVER, Mass., Dec. 8, 2010 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Dynamics Research Corporation (Nasdaq:DRCO), a leading provider of innovative management consulting, engineering, and technology solutions, today announced a four-year, $20 million contract award to support the enterprise architecture needs of the Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) Office of the Chief Information Officer.

Awarded through the GSA Alliant contract, the work will modernize DHS' IT assets and architecture providing for collaboration across divisions and centralizing the capture and management of enterprise knowledge. Working in tandem with DHS' organizational structure and integrating key activities, DRC will help improve organizational performance and core business processes. The work ensures that DHS' investments are cost-effective and mission-focused and that its IT programs and assets are well-managed to maximize their return on investment.

"We bring to this program a strong record of performance and experience with DHS providing enterprise architecture solutions and services on other engagements with the Department," said Jim Regan, DRC's chairman chief executive officer. "We appreciate the opportunity to re-affirm our dedication to DHS' mission and their selection of DRC as an innovative, highly qualified and trusted partner to ensure success."
