New UK MOD contract awarded to INVISIO through partner MCL for hearing protection and communications systems – initial order value SEK 90 million

INVISIO (IVSO) and its partner Marlborough Communications (MCL) have been awarded a 4-year contract by the UK Ministry of Defense (MOD) to supply hearing protection and communication ancillaries for specialist land, maritime and air applications. The four-year contract has an initial order value of £9.9M, INVISIO's share estimated to be £8.0M approximately SEK 90 million. Options for a fifth year and a complete mid-life enhancement at two and a half years are not included in the initial order.

The contract follows previous MOD contract awards for hearing protection announced in 2015.

"The contract is another important milestone in INVISIO's presence in the UK. It underscores the confidence that our customer has in our offer and the system's impact on both operational effectiveness and the protection of the British armed forces personnel," says Lars Højgård Hansen, CEO.

The INVISIO solution provides the customer with the ability to communicate and collaborate effectively in noisy environments, providing first rate situational awareness and better preventing hearing damage to personnel on operations whilst offering more comfort.
