Gordmans Names Ramin Mozafari Senior Vice President of Planning and Allocation

OMAHA, NE -- (Marketwired) -- 12/06/16 -- Gordmans Stores, Inc. (NASDAQ: GMAN), an Omaha-based apparel and home decor retailer, has named Ramin Mozafari Senior Vice President of Planning and Allocation.

Andy Hall, President and CEO of Gordmans, stated, "Ramin is a proven leader with an outstanding record of accomplishments in multichannel buying, merchandising and assortment planning as well as strategic financial planning. Throughout his career he has helped implement business-critical strategies and innovative solutions that have driven revenue growth. We are excited to have him as a member of our strong leadership team. With his industry expertise, Ramin will help us continue to align our inventories and operations with our everyday value priced business model."

Ramin joins Gordmans from Kohl's Department Stores, one of the largest department store chains in the U.S. At Kohl's, he was Senior Vice President, Divisional Merchandise Manager for Accessories and, prior to that, Senior Vice President, Planning and Allocation for Center Core. Prior to Kohl's, from 2008 to 2012, Ramin served with leading footwear retailer DSW, Inc., where he held various merchandising roles including Vice President, General Merchandise Manager. Ramin began his retail career with Macy's Inc. and held a number of positions culminating in Vice President level positions in Merchandising and Planning and Allocation.

Ramin has a master's degree in Business Administration from the University of Miami, and a bachelor of science degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Southern California.
