

Analogic Corporation Comments on Litigation

Company to Aggressively Protect Its Intellectual Property

PEABODY, Mass., May 16, 2011 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Analogic Corporation (Nasdaq:ALOG), a leading provider of medical imaging and aviation security technology, today commented on a lawsuit filed on Friday, May 13 in the United States District Court, District of Massachusetts, by NeuroLogica Corporation and senior officers of that company. Recently, information came to Analogic's attention that its intellectual property and other rights had been violated. Prior to the lawsuit, Analogic raised these concerns to NeuroLogica. In the suit, NeuroLogica asks the Court to find that, by raising those concerns, Analogic interfered with a possible sale of NeuroLogica to an unidentified third party. Analogic believes that NeuroLogica has violated Analogic's rights and that the lawsuit is completely without merit. Accordingly, Analogic will continue to vigorously protect its rights.

About Analogic

Analogic (Nasdaq:ALOG), headquartered in Peabody, Mass., is a high-technology company that designs and manufactures advanced medical imaging and security systems and subsystems sold to original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) and end users in the healthcare and homeland security markets. We are recognized worldwide for advancing state-of-the-art technology in the areas of computed tomography (CT), magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), digital mammography, ultrasound, and automatic explosives detection for airport security. Our OEM customers incorporate our technology into systems that they in turn sell for various medical and security applications. We also sell our ultrasound products directly to clinical end-user markets through our direct worldwide sales force under the brand name BK Medical.
