Hibbert, who has been with Navient for seven years, is recognized for leading his team to deliver a multitude of innovative technical solutions that benefit millions of customers.

Jack Remondi, president and CEO, presented Hibbert with the award, which recognizes one employee who demonstrates Navient's core values: customer-centricity, proactivity, leadership, stability, integrity and innovation.

When asked about the advice he would give to employees in the workplace, Hibbert stressed the importance of listening.

"Keep an open mind when listening," he says. "Some of the best improvements we've implemented have come from bringing multiple ideas together."

Hibbert's application development team is responsible for creating over three dozen automated solutions that help meet customer needs quickly.

"Ross's innovation has helped Navient increase its capability and productivity, which translates into enhanced customer service," Remondi said. "We are proud to have him on Team Navient and congratulate him on a job well done."
