Meredith and The Creative Kitchen Kids Food Festival To-Go Partner With the Association of Children's Museums

Events Educate Families on How to Make Balanced Food Choices through Fun and Engaging Activities

NEW YORK, March 8, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Meredith Corporation (NYSE: MDP; www.meredith.com), The Creative Kitchen, and the Association of Children's Museums partner to aid in the prevention of childhood obesity through programming that's simultaneously fun and educational, supporting the concept of learning through play. The Creative Kitchen Kids Food Festival To-Go takes place in 10 children's museums across the U.S. over four months.

Festival-goers can participate in the Balanced Plate Scavenger Hunt, the core educational component of the event, which teaches families the importance of balanced food choices. Upon completion of the Balanced Plate Scavenger Hunt, families are rewarded with a Prize Pack.

The Creative Kitchen Kids Food Festival To-Go is an expansion of the Kids Food Festival, an annual weekend of events that has taken place at Bryant Park in New York City, and in Washington D.C. The Creative Kitchen Kids Food Festival To-Go was launched in 2016 at Children's Discovery Museum of San Jose, California.

This tour kicks off March 12, 2017 at the Children's Discovery Museum of San Jose, California, and the fun continues through the end of July 2017.

ABOUT THE CREATIVE KITCHEN KIDS FOOD FESTIVAL TO-GO

The Creative Kitchen, founded in 2003, is a company that presents educational and entertaining content to children through food-related activities. The company focuses on teaching, writing, recipe and curricula development, brand consulting, and marketing to present entertaining and educational content through food-related activities, classes, and events for children. The Creative Kitchen's signature kids cooking curriculum, Everybody Can Cook, offers 15 recipes and lesson plans to allow instructors in general and special education classrooms to bring hands-on cooking classes to children ages 2 and up, of various physical and developmental abilities.

The Creative Kitchen's largest event, the Kids Food Festival, provides tools to help families make balanced food choices. The flagship event is an annual celebration in New York City to help educate children and families through fun and engaging activities, including the signature Balanced Plate Scavenger Hunt, hands-on cooking classes (in partnership with the James Beard Foundation) and a main stage featuring family friendly entertainment. The Kids Food Festival has hosted six successful festivals in New York City's Bryant Park, and one festival in Washington D.C. The festival boasted its largest turnout in 2016, when a record-breaking 20,000 attendees enjoyed the weekend of events; the three previous years boasted approximately 16,000 people each.

The Kids Food Festival launched its one-day To-Go program in March 2016 at the Children's Discovery Museum in San Jose, California. The Creative Kitchen Kids Food Festival To-Go is now excited to offer the Kids Food Festival To-Go to many more children's museums throughout the country.
