

Frontier Communications Teams with the Employer Partnership of the Armed Forces to Provide Career Opportunities for Military Reservists and Veterans

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov 11, 2010 (BUSINESS WIRE) --

Today, Veterans Day, Frontier Communications Corporation (NYSE: FTR) announced it is formally working with the Employer Partnership of the Armed Forces to boost career opportunities for members of the military reserve and veterans. In announcing the partnership, Maggie Wilderotter, Chairman and CEO of Frontier, noted, "Members of the military have a well-earned reputation for leadership, teamwork, accountability and discipline. In addition, many have been in military roles that complement skill sets that Frontier needs, such as information technology, customer service and technical operations."

In saluting the partnership with Frontier, Lt. Gen. Jack C. Stultz, Chief, U.S. Army Reserve, and Commander, U.S. Army Reserve Command, noted, "It's wonderful that Frontier appreciates the value that Military Reservists, their Spouses, and Veterans offer the civilian workplace. Partnering with Frontier will help increase the career opportunities available for our Service men and women, while also providing Frontier access to a pool of highly trained and reliable personnel."
