

CACI Marks 50 Years of Success and Innovation in IT Sector

Maintains Sustained Growth and a Commitment to National Service and Security

ARLINGTON, Va.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Capping off a record-breaking fiscal year, CACI International Inc (NYSE: CACI) is celebrating the start of its 50th year in business. The company has enjoyed five decades of success in providing high-value solutions in a variety of areas, including defense, intelligence, homeland security, and IT modernization and government transformation. CACI attributes its longevity to its solid corporate culture, built upon the cornerstones of hiring and rewarding a talented workforce, predicting and acting on technology trends, and delivering innovative services that help customers meet their greatest challenges.

CACI was founded in 1962 by the late Herb Karr, a practical and visionary businessman, and Harry Markowitz, a programming genius. These entrepreneurs saw a promising business opportunity in an unsupported public domain software language called SIMSCRIPT and created a company to train and support its users. By the late 1960s, CACI had become a publicly traded company with revenue totaling more than $1 million.

In 1972, Dr. J.P. (Jack) London, who would later become President and CEO, joined the company as a program manager, beginning a period of significant progress. Under Dr. London's leadership, CACI overcame evolving market challenges and smoothly transitioned from a professional services firm to a competitive network services provider. A brilliant trend watcher, Dr. London introduced CACI to new markets and initiated and championed its dynamic culture, establishing its employee awards and recognition program in 1981. He also started CACI's strategic mergers and acquisitions program — through which it has made 50 acquisitions to date — in 1992, spurring considerable growth over the next several decades.

Today, CACI offers a wide spectrum of IT and professional services and has an exceptional workforce of 13,800 employees across more than 120 offices worldwide. Even in a period of economic uncertainty, CACI's fiscal performance remains outstanding. Revenues totaled a record $3.15 billion for fiscal year 2010 and are currently projected to range from $3.5 to $3.6 billion for fiscal year 2011. CACI's stock price also recently reached its highest level in more than five years.

Bill Fairl, CACI's President of U.S. Operations, said, "CACI is incredibly proud to commemorate this significant milestone. Our many accomplishments and steady growth over the past five decades are a testament to our solid business foundation and inspired workforce."

Paul Cofoni, CACI's President and CEO, said, "CACI was founded with an innovative vision and dedication to excellence that has served us well for 50 years. We pride ourselves on our unwavering commitment to national service and the critically important IT solutions and professional services we provide for our clients. We look forward to many more years of continued growth and success."

According to Dr. J.P. (Jack) London, CACI's Executive Chairman and Chairman of the Board, and a veteran of 40 years with the company, "CACI has become a major competitor in the federal marketplace because of our strategic vision and vigilance in anticipating and leveraging marketplace trends. These outstanding attributes have directly sustained and fueled our success, and I know they will continue to do so year after year."

Celebrating our 50th year in business, CACI sustains an exceptional record of success by providing professional services and IT solutions needed to prevail in the areas of defense, intelligence, homeland security, and IT modernization and government transformation.
