Citrix Named a Leader in 2017 Gartner Magic Quadrant for Content Collaboration Platforms

Evaluation based on Completeness of Vision and Ability to Execute

SANTA CLARA, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Citrix today announced it has been recognized by Gartner, Inc. as a leader in the July 2017 "Magic Quadrant for Content Collaboration Platforms".

ShareFile is a content collaboration platform that focuses on collaboration, user productivity, infrastructure modernization, security, compliance and integration. ShareFile supports hybrid architectures — that is, synchronization and sharing functions are provided as a service, while corporate files can be kept either in the ShareFile cloud repository, on third-party clouds or on-premises (through Citrix ShareFile StorageZones).

Quotes:

Adolfo Rodriguez, VP, Product, Citrix

"To embrace the future of work, organizations are seeking content collaboration platform capabilities that include workflow, digital signature, and multi-cloud/hybrid storage all while ensuring content remains secure. Whether it is an internal or external client, content collaboration must be easy to use to maintain productivity. Citrix is the only technology provider that integrates application and desktop delivery, collaboration platforms and enterprise mobility management to create secure digital workspaces. We believe our position as a leader in this report gives our customers confidence in their decision to partner with Citrix. Through innovation, Citrix continues to empower our customers to reimagine the way work gets done with the secure deliver of apps and data in a highly consumable way."
