

2011 Job Survival Survey Released on August 24

In Advance of Labor Day, Results to Reveal How Working Americans are Staying Employed

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17, 2011 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Just in time for Labor Day, results from the 2011 Job Survival Survey will be released Wednesday, August 24 at 8 a.m. PDT. The survey of nearly 1,000 adults, conducted by Harris Interactive on behalf of Everest College, will reveal and rank what steps Americans have taken to stay employed during a challenging job market.

What: 2011 Job Survival Survey, a national snapshot of how different demographics have responded in the past year to improve their job security.

Who: John Andrews, career expert at Everest College, is available for media interviews to discuss survey findings, as well as provide commentary on workplace hiring trends. Andrews is regional vice president of operations for Everest College.

Why: The survey will be released to coincide with Labor Day 2011, a time when millions of Americans focus on their personal employment situation and careers.

Date/Time: Wednesday, Aug. 24 at 8 a.m. PDT through GlobeNewswire or by sending a media request to Ron Neal at rneal@pondel.com or Evan Pondel at epondel@pondel.com.
