

DynCorp International Appoints Curtis Schehr to Newly Created Post of Senior Vice President, Chief Compliance Officer and Executive Counsel

FALLS CHURCH, Va., May 27, 2009 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- DynCorp International (NYSE:DCP) has created a new senior executive position of Senior Vice President, Chief Compliance Officer and Executive Counsel. Mr. Curtis L. Schehr, currently Senior Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, has been appointed to this position effective immediately. Mr. Schehr will report both to the President and CEO of DynCorp International, William L. Ballhaus, and to the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors.

In this new executive capacity, Mr. Schehr will be responsible for developing and implementing an integrated governance, risk and compliance framework across the company that captures ethics, compliance and regulatory areas, and effectively supports an accountable and transparent business environment.

He will have management oversight for the company's ethics and business conduct program, related internal investigations, internal audit, and trade compliance, which includes all export and import activities. He will also have responsibility for other related regulatory and compliance matters.

The creation of this senior executive position underscores the commitment and absolute priority DynCorp International places on its core values of ethics, service, and performance. As a government contractor supporting U.S. national security and foreign policy objectives, the services performed by DynCorp International are a public trust, and must always meet the highest standards of public and government scrutiny, accountability and oversight. The work of the chief compliance officer will ensure a forward-looking, pro-active and integrated culture of corporate performance compliant with these standards.

"I am very pleased that Curtis has accepted the appointment to this new and critical role which supports the company's needs in an area of vital importance to our growth strategy and future success. Establishment of this position reflects our intent to be the corporate model with respect to compliance, ethics and accountability," said CEO William L. Ballhaus. "Curtis brings focus, energy and strong leadership to the challenge of fostering an integrated compliance organization which the board of directors and I believe requires our top executive talent."

Curtis Schehr, age 50, joined DynCorp International in October 2006 as Senior Vice President and General Counsel. Before joining DynCorp International, Curtis served from 1996 to 2006 as Senior Vice-President, General Counsel and Secretary of Anteon International Corporation.
