D&B Credit Advantage Visualizes Account Risk Across Customer Portfolio

Dun & Bradstreet Launches Newest Edition of its Next-Generation Risk Management Solution

SHORT HILLS, N.J., Feb. 13, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Less than a year after introducing D&B Credit, Dun & Bradstreet's next-generation risk intelligence platform, the company introduces D&B Credit Advantage, the newest edition to the comprehensive suite of solutions. D&B Credit Advantage allows customers to integrate their accounts receivable data with leading data and analytics from Dun & Bradstreet, giving users a newly-enhanced, holistic view of their accounts portfolio to assess and manage risk, and ultimately help drive new business growth. The solution is currently available through a 30-day trial offer by visiting www.dnb.com/nextgen.

"D&B Credit Advantage makes it easier for our customers to manage outstanding debt and growth opportunity across their accounts; knowing which accounts pay on time and could be extended more credit, and which may be delinquent and require attention," said Eric Dowdell, global head of Trade Credit, Dun & Bradstreet. "Combining customers' accounts receivable data with Dun & Bradstreet's proprietary data and analytics is an exciting step that helps our global customers grow their most valuable relationships in business."

D&B Credit Advantage is now available in four markets - U.S., Canada, United Kingdom and Ireland - in multiple languages and currencies - to companies of all sizes, from global enterprises to smaller, more growth-oriented firms. For a limited time, new customers can trial it free for 30 days.
