

FNIS' MLS Group Receives Open Standards RETS 1.01 Certification Certification for Accessing and Exchanging Real Estate Transaction Information Gives FNIS' MLS Business Big Edge Over the Competition

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Sep 25, 2003 /PRNewswire-FirstCall via COMTEX/ --

Fidelity National Information Solutions, Inc. (Nasdaq: FNIS), the nation's most comprehensive source for real estate-related data and valuations, technology solutions and services, announced today that its MLS Systems and Solutions Group has received the Real Estate Transaction Standard (RETS) 1.01 and 1.5 Certification.

RETS is an open standard for accessing and exchanging real estate transaction information. Through a collaborative effort begun in 1999, the National Association of REALTORS(R) (NAR) and a number of industry technology leaders initiated the collaborative effort to make access and transfer of MLS information easier.

"As one of the first in the industry to achieve the RETS certification, FNIS strengthens its strategic commitment to support its MLS and real estate partners by improving productivity throughout the listing management lifecycle," said Beverly M. Faull, Vice President and General Manager of FNIS MLS Systems & Solutions Group. "FNIS has been involved with NAR during the development of the RETS standard from the initial development, and continues to be active in the evolution of the RETS standard," Faull concluded.

FNIS has spent the past year making significant progress on its MLS products and customer service. FNIS has continued to deliver major enhancements to its MLS platforms throughout 2003. The RETS certification achievement is indicative of the focus FNIS has placed on providing innovative real estate technology solutions to the MLS industry. Businesses that partner with FNIS can now leverage FNIS Real Estate, MLS and Transaction Management technology to increase efficiency and improve their bottom line.
