John L. Haynes of Hill International Named Fellow of AACE International

PHILADELPHIA and IRVINE, Calif., April 17, 2017 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Hill International (NYSE:HIL), the global leader in managing construction risk, announced today that John L. Haynes, PSP, FAACE, Director of Project Controls in Hill's Irvine, California office, has been named a Fellow of AACE International. AACE Fellows are a select group of distinguished members who have made special contributions to the association and the profession. Haynes will formally receive his Fellow designation at AACE's Annual Meeting to be held on June 13, 2017 at the Hyatt Regency in Orlando, Florida.

Haynes has more than 30 years of project controls experience on various projects including airports, bridges, roadways, pipelines, high-speed rail systems, theme parks, water and wastewater facilities, recycling facilities and public buildings. He has been Chairman of AACE's Western Winter Workshop for 13 of the past 14 years. Haynes holds a B.A. in music from the Musician's Institute and he is a certified Planning and Scheduling Professional.

"We congratulate John for this prestigious honor," said Michael B. Smith, Hill's Senior Vice President and Western Regional Manager. "We are very proud of his contributions to our company and to his profession," added Smith.

AACE International's vision is to be the recognized technical authority in cost and schedule management for programs, projects, products, assets and services. AACE's members enable organizations around the world to achieve their investment expectations by managing and controlling projects, programs, and portfolios and they create value by advancing technical knowledge and professional development.
