InnerWorkings Announces New Enterprise Print Management Agreement with Junior Achievement

CHICAGO, Apr 27, 2010 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- InnerWorkings, Inc. (NASDAQ:INWK), a leading provider of managed print and promotional solutions, announced today a long term enterprise print management contract with Junior Achievement, the world's largest organization dedicated to inspiring and preparing young people to succeed in a global economy.

Under this new agreement InnerWorkings will manage a broad range of print categories for Junior Achievement, including all of its curriculum materials.

Eric Belcher, CEO of InnerWorkings, said, "Junior Achievement does important work in helping today's youth and we are proud to be a significant new partner for them. Our solutions enable non-profit organizations like Junior Achievement to focus even more on their core mission and maximize the amount of time and funds they can commit to support their programs."

InnerWorkings' print management solutions allow clients to centralize and leverage their print spend through a single source provider with extensive experience across all categories of print. As a print procurement specialist InnerWorkings combines market leading technology and information with deep domain expertise and a proven methodology to deliver a comprehensive solution that drives process improvements and significant savings in what is a top spend category for many organizations.
