

Court Dismisses Certain Legal Claims Made Against SL Green Regarding Cancelled Property Sale

June 24, 2010 - New York, New York -SL Green Realty Corp. (NYSE: SLG) today disclosed that the New York State Supreme Court has dismissed certain legal claims made against the Company regarding a cancelled property sale.

SL Green reached an agreement in late 2009 to sell an investment interest in an office building at 485 Lexington Avenue in New York City, but the buyer failed to meet conditions imposed by the lender of the property. The buyer then filed a lawsuit in an attempt to force SL Green to transfer the property to the buyer at a reduced price without lender consent, and filed a Notice of Pendency to prevent SL Green from selling the property to anyone else. The Court dismissed the claims which sought to compel SL Green to transfer the property, and cancelled the Notice of Pendency.

SL Green President & Chief Investment Officer Andrew Mathias commented, "While it was unfortunate that the buyer chose this course of action after being unable to meet the lender's conditions and the transaction couldn't be completed, the Court has verified that we fulfilled our obligations in seeking lender approval. Most importantly, we have continued to manage the building and provide superior tenant service without interruption. The only remaining claim is for damages, which the Court stated is limited to a return of the deposit, and since we have already refunded the deposit we will be moving to dismiss that claim as well."
