

Towerstream Expands Los Angeles Network to Include Burbank

Production Companies, Sound Studios and Other Area Businesses Now Have Access to Towerstream's High-Speed, Wireless Business Internet Service

MIDDLETOWN, RI, Jul 28, 2009 (MARKETWIRE via COMTEX News Network) -- News Facts Towerstream (NASDAQ: TWER), a leading fixed WiMAX service provider, today announced it has extended the coverage area of its Los Angeles wireless broadband network to include Burbank, CA. As a result, additional companies in the Los Angeles area will now have access to Towerstream's high-speed, wireless business Internet service.

The expansion of Towerstream's Los Angeles network will strengthen service for existing customers in the city, while enabling Towerstream to further penetrate the market and add new customers.

Towerstream's wireless Internet service allows businesses of all sizes to connect to secure, reliable, and cost effective broadband with improved functionality over traditional broadband, including faster upload speeds.

Quotes "Adding Burbank to Towerstream's existing Los Angeles network gives us access to an additional 20,888 businesses. Through this new expansion, we're able to further penetrate Los Angeles and continue to increase our market share, customer base and company revenue." (Jeff Thompson, President and CEO of Towerstream -- Jeff Thompson's bio)

"Los Angeles is a hub for entertainment-industry businesses, like production companies and sound and film studios, that work with large multimedia files all day, every day. As a result, these companies have unique needs for high-levels of symmetrical bandwidth to enable fast uploads and downloads. Towerstream's flexible and reliable service is an ideal solution for these companies, ensuring projects can be completed on time and with maximum efficiency." (Arthur Giftakis, VP of Engineering for Towerstream -- Arthur Giftakis' bio)
